

Futon. It works, and several people have successfully slept on it. My dad prefers to sleep on it when in the couch configuration, but he falls asleep on the couch all the time anyway. Most people prefer to deploy it in its bed configuration for sleeping. It also has two little wing tables for holding your mai tais. $50?

Couch (small, maybe love-seat-ish). This came from a guy in East Falmouth who has a beautiful smoke free, pet free house and his wife was remodeling. Honestly I'm not sure why because the house was awesome as it was. Fun fact: he also works for the Steamship and we all had a big laugh the first time I saw him on the boat. I got it for free and you should too.

Rocking chair. It's nice, and made by Nichols & Stone Co., which was a Massachusetts company before it was bought out in 2008 by some huge conglomerate. This definitely predates that. I got it at an estate sale in Cotuit somewhere. IT ROCKS! $20.

End table. This little guy I hauled all the way from Seattle out of intangible fondness. It's not the prettiest but it has soul. Does not come with my family photos but could come with half-full Kleenex box to the right buyer. $10. Red lamp and noisy but accurate timer: $5.

Octagonal end table. $10. Little Ikea lamp. $5.
