

An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. A joint appointment with an educational institution which requires no more than one-sixth of the individual's time on an annual basis to be devoted to the other institution will not, per se, be deemed to be cessation of full-time, year-round employment at the Institution. A member of the Resident Scientific Staff shall not hold a tenured position at another institution. An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. Arial 10.5, single space

An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. A joint appointment with an educational institution which requires no more than one-sixth of the individual's time on an annual basis to be devoted to the other institution will not, per se, be deemed to be cessation of full-time, year-round employment at the Institution. A member of the Resident Scientific Staff shall not hold a tenured position at another institution. An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. Helvetica 10.5, single space

An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. A joint appointment with an educational institution which requires no more than one-sixth of the individual's time on an annual basis to be devoted to the other institution will not, per se, be deemed to be cessation of full-time, year-round employment at the Institution. A member of the Resident Scientific Staff shall not hold a tenured position at another institution. An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. Palatino Linotype 10, single space

An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. A joint appointment with an educational institution which requires no more than one-sixth of the individual's time on an annual basis to be devoted to the other institution will not, per se, be deemed to be cessation of full-time, year-round employment at the Institution. A member of the Resident Scientific Staff shall not hold a tenured position at another institution. An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. Georgia 10.5, single space

An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. A joint appointment with an educational institution which requires no more than one-sixth of the individual's time on an annual basis to be devoted to the other institution will not, per se, be deemed to be cessation of full-time, year-round employment at the Institution. A member of the Resident Scientific Staff shall not hold a tenured position at another institution. An appointment to the Resident Scientific Staff is made with the expectation that the individual will work for the Institution on a full-time, year-round basis. Any change in this status results in review of the individual's appointment. Times New Roman 11.5, line spacing exactly 12