

Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs
Nelson Center for Entrepreneurship

The Position

Adjunct Lecturer
Entrepreneurship and Sustainability

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs and the Nelson Center for Entrepreneurship invite applications for an adjunct lecturer position to teach a one-semester course about entrepreneurship and sustainability. This jointly supported course is designed to help students identify key environmental problems and explore the possibility of creating scalable solutions to those problems. Ideally, this course would have a strong experiential component that culminates in a project or significant work product that students undertake with faculty supervision. This course will be offered in the spring semester of 2021 and may be offered in-person, online, or in hybrid fashion, as circumstances allow. We are committed to building a teaching team diverse in people, ideas, and experiences and so encourage individuals who bring diverse perspectives to apply.

Qualifications

Applicants will have relevant professional experience as entrepreneurs, ideally having worked in an early-stage venture, on a project within an established company, or in an organization addressing a serious environmental challenge. An advanced degree is preferred. Experience teaching undergraduates or graduates and the ability to work with students from a broad range of backgrounds and areas of knowledge is expected. The ability to support in-person teaching with integrative technologies for remote teaching, should circumstances require it, is essential.

Brown University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and actively solicits applications from women and minorities. The University is committed to fostering and maintaining a diverse work culture that respects the rights and dignity of each individual, without regard to race, color, national origin, ancestry, religious creed, sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, gender expression, height, weight, marital status, disability, medical condition, age, or veteran status.

Starting Date

Spring 2021

Spring term classes will begin Jan. 20, 2021. Remote reading period will begin April 12 and will be followed by remote final exams April 19-23. The full academic calendar may be found on the Brown University Office of the Registrar's website.

Application Instructions

Interested applicants should submit the following to <https://apply.interfolio.com/78796>:

- Cover Letter
- CV
- Teaching Statement
- Names and contact information for 3 references.

To receive full consideration applications must be received by October 1st, 2020.

About the Watson Institute of International and Public Affairs

The Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University seeks to promote a just and peaceful world through research, teaching, and public engagement. The Watson Institute is a community of scholars, practitioners, and students whose work aims to help us understand and address critical challenges. It is dedicated to meaningful social science research and teaching, and animated by the conviction that informed policy can change systems and societies for the better.

About the Nelson Center for Entrepreneurship

The Nelson Center for Entrepreneurship at Brown University supports entrepreneurs who are trying to create solutions with impact. It is a community of students, faculty, staff, alumni, and community members who are devoted to teaching, learning, and utilizing entrepreneurship as a problem solving discipline. Launched in the fall of 2016, and housed at the heart of campus, it offers courses, co-curricular programming, and venture support programs to both undergraduate and graduate students.