Summer 2010 teachers wanted

The Children's School of Science is seeking talented and motivated teachers for its summer 2010 session for Entomology, Parasitology, Robotics & ROVs, and Black & White Photography.

Three and six week courses meet Monday to Friday for ninety minutes.

Guided by Louis Agassiz's motto, "Study Nature, not Books," courses emphasize observation, inquiry and hands-on work in the field, at local laboratories and in the classroom.

Applicants to CSS normally have a minimum of a Bachelor of Science or Arts in a scientific specialty; however, the school considers applicants with alternative qualifications.

Skills necessary: teaching experience required, with children recommended; and a demonstrated ability in field of expertise.

Information on the school and its programs can be found at:
