

Faculty Lectures at SEA

Changing SEAs: 25 years at SEA

Dr. Mary Malloy

Sunday, May 1st at 1 p.m.

Sea Education Association

James L. Madden Center Lecture Hall • 171 Woods Hole Road in Falmouth

Free and Open to the Public • Light Refreshments Served

About the Lecture

Dr. Mary Malloy has taught most of her career at SEA Semester, a position that she (like most faculty), thought would be a quick step on the road to a “real” job. As she prepares to depart after 25 years, Mary will talk about the compelling nature of SEA programs, what happened to her as the time flew by, and how both changed and grew with the realization that humans have wrought extreme environmental changes on the world, and SEA is in a unique position to address them.

About the Lecturer

Dr. Mary Malloy is Professor of Maritime Studies at SEA and Director of the Global Ocean program. She is the author of four books on the maritime trade between New England and the North Pacific, including the award-winning Devil on the Deep Blue Sea: The Notorious Career of Samuel Hill of Boston, and three novels. Mary teaches in the Museum Studies program at Harvard University and is currently writing a book on the history of museums.

Baelo Claudia near the Strait of Gibraltar.
Photo: Mary Malloy

Ancient totem poles in situ on the coast of British Columbia. Photo: Mary Malloy